

LEE HIGHWAY IS MAKING PROGRESS

"Main Street of the South" Gets Financial Aid From States and Counties.

IS WONDERFUL SCENIC ROUTE

Will Afford Coast to Coast Highway Transportation to at Least 15,000,000 People—Every Mile May Now Be Used.

Washington, D. C.—Recent action by a county in Oklahoma in voting a bond issue of several hundred thousand dollars to construct a link in the Lee highway is concrete evidence of the enterprise which is to give the country another transcontinental road. It is a demonstration of the kind of co-operation on the part of states and counties that insures success to the project fostered by the organization known as the Lee Highway association.

This great artery of travel by motor has been termed the Southern Main Street of the United States. Its promoters assert that it will be the finest scenic route from coast to coast as well as the shortest. From Washington to San Diego, Cal., it will measure 3,000 miles, which is 300 miles less than any other route. Eventually, it is said, the Lee highway will be extended from Washington to New York city and from San Diego to San Francisco, giving it a total length of 5,700 miles.

It is estimated that the road will afford highway transportation to at least 15,000,000 people, approximately one-seventh of our continental population. This will contribute materially to the development of a zone at least 100 miles wide throughout its entire length. This is regarded as of far more importance than the facility it will offer to tin-canners and other tourists to travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific through much of the most beautiful scenery in the country as well as over a comparatively easy roadway.

Every Mile May Now Be Used.

Every mile of the road is now a connected up highway, they announce, and can be traveled any day in the year—in fact, it is all in daily use. It is estimated that approximately 90 per cent of it is graded and that all the necessary bridges and culverts have been constructed. Some of this roadway is of the type known as water-bound macadam, but this will be replaced ultimately with scientifically built pavement.

From almost every county seat along the line there is a stretch of this modern pavement extending in either direction and in some instances this permanent roadway is continuous for 200 miles. There are, of course, breaks in its continuity, but the association is now negotiating a construction program under which the road authorities of the various states and counties will co-operate to close all the gaps. It is hoped that this can be accomplished within the next two years, assuming that conditions continue favorable.

The Lee highway runs southwest from Washington, traversing the valley of Virginia, thence west to cross the Mississippi river at Memphis. From Memphis it runs to Little Rock, Ark., and follows the magnificent Red River valley of southern Oklahoma, then on through western Texas, southern New Mexico, Arizona and California to San Diego.

The route from the Mississippi on is practically one of the five transcontinental lines surveyed by order of congress during the period immediately preceding the Civil war when it was realized that the territory gained as a result of the Mexican war and by the acquisition of California could only be consolidated through lines of transportation linking the Pacific coast to the Mississippi valley and thence with the Atlantic seaboard.

Follows Streams and Rivers.

The Lee highway follows beautiful rivers and streams for more miles than any other road in the world. It is claimed, and offers a combination of mountain and valley scenery of unusual beauty and variety.

Along with the construction of the road the Lee Highway association purposes the carrying on of an educational campaign in which the history, geography, literature, industries, natural resources and attractions of the zone traversed by the highway will be made generally known. This will fit into the "seeing America first" propaganda. Naturally the business element in every community along the line is interested in this program, and is co-operating in every possible way.

Begin the New Year Right

JAN. 1, 1923, is the day of all days upon which you should open a savings account at this bank. Let the turning of a new leaf in the book of time signalize the turning of a new leaf in your book of life. Let this new leaf of yours be on the credit side of the savings ledger of this bank. See that your name is written across the top of that page, and every month add something to the column of credits that appears below. Start right, stay right, and you will always be right.

For Sale or Rent

Having decided to move to the farm I have recently purchased, I will sell or rent the property in Berea, Ky., on Center St., where I now live. The dwelling is a two-story, 9 room, plastered, frame building, furnace heat, electric lights, toilet, and bath. Good barn, garage, and all necessary out buildings. The lot has a frontage of 75 ft. and is 200 ft. deep. I also have 4½ acres of creek bottom land in grass just outside of city limits that I will sell with this property. I am offering this property at a great bargain, and will sell on easy terms if terms are desired. Can give possessions January 1st, 1923.

"The Good Old Days" we whisper
As Memory spins its dream,
And all the olden wonders
Upon our vision gleam;
Upon our vision gleam;
"The Good Old Days," how lovely
In their unstained delight,
Their raptures safely harbored
By altars pure and white.
But how about the New Days,
That call across the snow?
Ah, hily let us follow
To where their roses blow;
The New Days are the best days
If we will only see
They turn into the Old Days
That sing for you and me.

The new year does not depend for success upon the man who makes elaborate plans for the 365 days to come, but rather upon the one who simply intends to do his very best every day, in whatever comes along, finding his success in well-being and well-doing, rather than in the thing done. Nothing is small to the man who faces all things in this big spirit.

In the hush of the New Year the heart of the sad and stricken world is whispering now: "Ring in the Christ that is to be." Only so can the confusions and disturbances which now held the world ever be corrected, and the doubts of men healed and turned into joy.

Our lives run with the years away, How soon our story is of Yesterday God gives us this one glory—only one Love but begins when Time and Death are done.

The Christmas colics are on the wane now; and the Christmas presents have been largely exchanged. Let's get busy and do our Christmas stopping early.

Almost before we know it now the dandelion will smile again. And harvesting the gold of spring, we can forget the disappointments incident to the oil stock that didn't pan out.

Every New Year comes to us pleading wistfully for us to "Love One Another."

Only three months more and the merry little baseball bat will be playing the call of spring.

RULERS' HEARTS IN CHAPEL

All Except Two of Hapsburgs Represented in Curious Collection in Old Church.

Vienna. — The so-called Loretto chapel of the beautiful old Court Church of the Augustines, which dates from 1520, contains the hearts of all the members of the house of Hapsburg who have died during the last 500 years save two.

The exceptions are the hearts of the long-lost Archduke John, who is now judiciously assumed to have perished at sea more than thirty years ago, while on his way around Cape Horn in a sailing ship.

The other heart absent is that of Empress Elizabeth, which was pierced at Geneva by the stiletto-like file of her Italian anarchist assassin. She had exacted long before her end a solemn promise from her husband that under no circumstances would he permit the dispersal of her remains.

It was a very ancient custom that when the angel of death overtook a son of the house of Hapsburg the heart was removed from the body for preservation in a silver urn in the Loretto chapel of the Church of the Augustines, the bowels in another silver urn being relegated to the crypt of the wonderful old Cathedral of St. Stephen, while the rest of the thus sadly mangled remains reposed in the vaults of the Church of the Capuchins.

"Free" To Members!

Washington.—Free seed went down to defeat in the House when an amendment offered by Representative John W. Langley, of Kentucky, Republican, to add an appropriation of $300,000 to the agricultural appropriation bill for distribution of seed by members of Congress was voted down, 74 to 71.
